

THE COURT: Who were you working for?

THE DEFENDANT: For the American Refining & Smelting Company.

THE COURT: You were there about four days before this trouble occurred, the 21st, the information says the 21st?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir, that is right.

THE COURT: How did you come to do it?

THE DEFENDANT: Well, on the night, as I explained to my attorney, I was coming to Salt Lake with a friend of mine, I had been staying in the camp and I had been sleeping out--

THE COURT: How did you come to break into the depot?

THE DEFENDANT: I didn't break into the depot. I explained it to him here, I was implicated in it. I don't see any way that I can prove it.

THE COURT: What do you mean by implicated. You mean somebody else did the stealing, and you were close by there and watched him do it?

THE DEFENDANT: I explained it to him, this is the way it was, I was coming down the railroad track, and the party that broke into the house asked me was I going to catch the train that comes into the city late at night, when the men change shift there is a train for them to come in on, and this friend of mine that lives here in town, he was coming in, and when we were there on the job, this gentlemen came on the job, and I told him I had been staying there, I stayed out there in the camp, and I
