

hand to him, see that he gets along, if I possibly can.

I have a lot of interest in these young fellows, because when the home is broken up they haven't anything to keep them there, and they get into trouble. I don't think the boy is such a very bad boy.

THE COURT: I don't think he is either.

MR. JOHNSON: No.

THE COURT: He has been unfortunate to commit rather a serious offense.

MR. JOHNSON: Yes.

THE COURT: It is the judgment and sentence of this court, Mr. McCuaig, that you be confined in the State Penitentiary and the court is going to make a recommendation that will not be very severe. I think you understand how we feel toward you. I am sure if you make up your mind to make a man of yourself after you get out, that you will do that.

That will be all. You will hear from the Board of Pardons.
