

step-mother about six or seven months after father died, and I could not get along with her and I struck out.

THE COURT: How old were you then?

DEFENDANT MCCARTHY: I was seventeen then, sir.

THE COURT: How old are you now?

DEFENDANT MCCARTHY: Eighteen.

THE COURT: Where did you go then?

DEFENDANT MCCARTHY: Well I just went to different parts of the country. Down in the southern part. I have been out in the western part mostly.

THE COURT: Have you been riding the brakes?

DEFENDANT MCCARTHY: Riding in box cars, but not the brakes.

THE COURT: What have you been doing all this time?

DEFENDANT MCCARTHY: I have been working at different places. Mostly on farms.

THE COURT: Where did you come from when you came to Milford?

DEFENDANT MCCARTHY: From Los Angeles.

THE COURT: How did you get down to Los Angeles?

DEFENDANT MCCARTHY: I came in on the Southern Pacific.

THE COURT: What have you been doing all the time? Just tramping around?

DEFENDANT MCCARTHY: Working mostly.

THE COURT: Breaking into stores and stealing goods?

DEFENDANT MCCARTHY: No.

THE COURT: Been in trouble in your life?

DEFENDANT MCCARTHY: I have slept in jail, but never been for shooting craps, or something like that.

THE COURT: What jails have you slept in?

DEFENDANT MCCARTHY: In Yuma.

THE COURT: Where is Yuma?

DEFENDANT MCCARTHY: Yuma, Arizona.

THE COURT: What were you doing there?

DEFENDANT MCCARTHY: I was out of funds and I got a job
