

THE COURT: Do they care for you?

DEFENDANT ANDERSON: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: And do you care for them?

DEFENDANT ANDERSON: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Are they dependant, have they been dependant upon you?

DEFENDANT ANDERSON: No, sir.

THE COURT: They get along without your help?

DEFENDANT ANDERSON: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Are you married?

DEFENDANT ANDERSON: No, sir.

THE COURT: Have you any children?

THE DEFENDANT ANDERSON: Not that I know of.

THE COURT: Have you ever been convicted of any offense?

DEFENDANT ANDERSON: No, sir.

THE COURT: Been charged with any offense?

DEFENDANT ANDERSON: No, sir.

THE COURT: Is there anything you want to say to me that might help me in my recommendation?

DEFENDANT ANDERSON: Not that I know of.

THE COURT: You are at perfect liberty and free to tell me what you want to.

DEFENDANT ANDERSON: No, sir.

THE COURT: I just simply want to be advised so that I can act intelligently in the matter.

THE DEFENDANT ANDERSON: I have nothing to say.

THE COURT: That is all, you may sit down. Mr.
