

THE COURT: Well, now tell me, where were you when you went out of the service?

DEFENDANT BAXTER: Ft. Logan, Colorado.

THE COURT: From there where did you go?

DEFENDANT BAXTER: Went to Nebraska for a while.

THE COURT: Were you employed at all during that time.

DEFENDANT BAXTER: I was employed over there part of the time I was there.

THE COURT: How did you happen to get out here?

DEFENDANT BAXTER: Well, I was discharged from the army and I never got transportation home. I forfeited the transportation to get out.

THE COURT: Were you a private?

DEFENDANT BAXTER: No, sir, sergeant.

THE COURT: How long had you been sergeant?

DEFENDANT BAXTER: I was a sergeant twice. I was a sergeant four months this last time.

THE COURT: Are you married?

DEFENDANT BAXTER: No, sir.

THE COURT: Have you a mother dependent on anybody for help?

DEFENDANT BAXTER: No, sir.

THE COURT: And your father?

DEFENDANT BAXTER: No, sir.

THE COURT: They take care of themselves?

DEFENDANT BAXTER: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Have you other brothers and sisters?
