

to my mind he was defending his own.

I do not consider property in any amount worth a life in any case but if we judge by motive and I think that is the only just way to judge; and as this poor fellow who was driven to such sad loss of temper gets a term of imprisonment long enough to meditate on his great wrong justice will be done and surely we cannot wish nor want for more.

Yours hopefully,

Mary G. Myles