

MR. ALLEN: I have advised the defendant to plead guilty, your honor, but he says he don't know the value of the property; but the District Attorney has promised to make some recommendation and I think we are safe enough in pleading guilty to grand larceny.

THE COURT: Are you ready to proceed now?

MR. ALLEN: Yes.

MR. HUTCHINSON: It will be necessary to use this interpreter again.

THE COURT: I think he has been sworn.

(Thereupon the following proceedings were had through the interpreter Martin Raffino):

THE COURT: Manuel Francisco, you have heretofore entered a plea of not guilty to the charge of burglary in the second degree in this case. The District Attorney now states that he proposes to the court that you be allowed to plead to a charge of grand larceny committed at the same time and place alleged in the information. I understand from the statements of counsel that the defendant insists that he did not break into the building.

MR. ALLEN: He got part of the goods.

THE COURT: He got some of the property and he is willing to plead guilty to what he did do, not to what he says he didn't do, and that is the reason why the District Attorney is willing to accept a plea to the charge of grand larceny which is an included offense of a lesser degree.

You are now charged with the crime of grand larceny, committed as follows:

That on the 19th day of September, 1923, at Salt Lake
